1. On about 20 August, one of the soldiers of the Soviet railroad guard detail [ ] in Muellrose produced his pass, stating jubilantly that they were again permitted to enter German restaurants, come into contact with the civilian population and buy alcoholic beverages. On 31 August, the innkeeper of an excursion restaurant in Kaisermuehl near Muellrose said that, on 30 August, soldiers from the tank camp whom he had refused to serve hard liquor in addition to beer had demolished part of his furniture. He said that a delegation [ ] appeared at his restaurant to pay him a compensation. They declared that they were prepared to pay all damage done.<sup>1</sup> 25X1C
2. On 28 August, a command post at which numerous telephone lines converged was located in a woods about 200 meters east of kilometer mark 23.3 of the Naumburg-Markkroehlitz road. Three SU-76 were nearby. Three light AT guns were employed for road protection just north of point 129 where the road to Dobi-chau branched off. Skirmishers supported by AT guns advanced against a position which crossed the road southwest of Markkroehlitz and ran in the direction of Goeseck-Poedelitz.<sup>2</sup> 25X1C
3. A shoemaker who frequently worked for the troops from the Reuss Kaserne in Gera quartered at the Ohrdruf troop training grounds stated that the bulk of the units was still at the troop training grounds on 2 September. He said that the troops would return to their post not earlier than October.<sup>3</sup>
4. On 9 September, 50 flatcars with sideracks and 10 converted boxcars were made available in Jueterbog. On 9 September, 40 flatcars with sideracks were loaded with trucks [ ] and 250 soldiers wearing red-bordered black epaulets were entrained at the Jueterbog railroad station. The train left toward Berlin.<sup>4</sup> 25X1C
5. On 9 September, 18 officers and 8 EM who wore tank and artillery insignia and carried baggage, boxes and rubber for soles arrived in Eisenach by rail, coming from the direction of Weissenfels. Truck [ ] had come for them. On 10 September, 22 officers and 12 EM who carried similar baggage and came from the direction of Naumburg were transported to the troop training grounds by truck [ ] 25X1C
